Because of the lack of comparative scores, those who arranged the handicaps for Saturday's match had no way to figure just how many strokes should be allowed the players. RESIDENTS OF SOUTH GREEN-CASTLE DO NOT WANT THE SEWER-MEMBERS OF THE SPECIAL SEWER COMMITTEE SAYS THAT PLANS WILL BE CHANGED.

SAYS COST IS TO GREAT

Residents of Greencastle south of Hanna street do not want the sewer system extended into that section of town. To emphasize this fact several petitions are being circulated in that section of town, asking the council to have the plans for the proposed system changed so as to leave that party of the city.

Some of these petitions have already been handed to members of the city council special sewer committee, and will be presented to the city counil at its regular meeting next week. A petition of Parke street property owners contains the signatures of all except one property owner on the

One member of the sewer committee this morning stated that there was little doubt but that the plans would be changed. A $79,905 sewer system is entirely too extensive for Greencastle. The plans originally was for a system which would care for the more conjested sections of the town, while the plans as submitted cover virtually the entire town.

He said that a $40,000 system is all that is required here now and that he believes the council will order that the plans be materially changed.

The question of just what territory will be included in the sewer system will be determined at a special meeting of the city council to be held tomorrow evening. After this meeting the preliminary resolution for the improvement will be drawn up and given its first publication.

The bank alleges that $225, of the amount loaned has never been paid and asks judgment and foreclosure of the mortgage. The bank also asks judgment of $25 for attorney's fees in the case.

NO ACCIDENTS REPORTED AS RESULT OF THE FOURTH

Greencastle and near vicinity exrienced what may be termed a realfor-sure safe and sane Fourth of July. As far as can be learned, not a single accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. This is considered a remarkable record in view of the experiences of past years. One local physician, who has been practicing in Greencastle for almost a quarter of a century, says that it is the first time that he can remember that he was not called upon to pick powder out of the fingers or face of some young enthusiast. The absence of accidents this year is attributed largely to the efficient management of the sale of the fireworks by the local officials and the extreme caution of parents who are learning that a serious injury is a dear price to pay for a day's celebra-

TARZAN OF THE APES

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A Munsey Company

Tarzan slays Kulonga in revenge for Kala's death and secures a bow and poi-soned arrows from the native village.

The forest echoed with the savage and triumphant paean. Birds fell still. and the larger animals and beasts of prey slunk stealthily away, for few there were of all the jungle who sought for trouble with the great anthropoids.

And in London another Lord Grey-stoke was speaking to his kind in the house of lords, but none trembled at the sound of his soft voice.

Sabor proved most unsavory eating even to Tarzan of the apes, but hunger served as a sauce, and ere long the well fed ape man was ready to sleep again. First, however, he must remove the hide, for it was as much for this as for any other purpose that he had desired to encompass the destruction of Sabor, the tiger.

Deftly he removed the great pelt, for he had practiced often on smaller animals, and when the task was finished he carried his trophy to the fork of a high tree. There, curling himself se-curely in a crotch, he fell into deep slumber.

What with loss of sleep, arduous ex ercise and a hearty meal Tarzan of the apes slept the sun round, awaken ing about noon of the following day He straightway repaired to the car-cass of Sabor, but was angered to find the bones picked clean by other hun gry denizens of the jungle.

He hastened on toward the point where he had left the tribe and, when he had found them, proudly exhibited the skin of Sabor, the tiger.

"Look," he cried, "apes of Kerchak See what Tarzan, the killer, has done Who else among you has ever killed one of Sabor's people? Tarzan is mightiest among you, for Tarzan is no ape. Tarzan is"— But here he stopped, for in the language of the anthropoids there was no word for man, and Tarzan could only write the word in English. He could not pronounce it.

The tribe had gathered about to look upon the proof of his wondrous prowess and to listen to his words.

Only Kerchak hung back, nursing his hatred and his rage.

Suddenly something snapped in the brain of the anthropoid. With a frightful roar the great beast sprang among the assemblage. Frothing and shrick ing in the insanity of his fury. Kerchak looked about for the object of his greatest hatred, and there. upon a nearby limb, he saw him sitting,

"Come down, Tarzan, great killer!" cried Kerchak, ready for battle. "Come down and feel the fangs of a greater! Do mighty fighters fly to the trees at danger?

And he emitted the volleying challenge of his kind.

Tarzan dropped to the Quietly ground. Breathlessly the tribe watch-ed Kerchak, still roaring, charge the relatively puny figure.

Nearly seven feet stood Kerchak on his short legs. His enormous shoulders were bunched and rounded with huge muscles. The back of his short neck was as a single lump of iron sinew which bulged beyond the base of his skull, so that his head seemed like a small ball protruding from a huge mountain of flesh

His back drawn, anarling lips exposed his great fighting fangs, and his bloodshot eyes gleamed in horrid reon of his madness

Awaiting him stood Tarzan, himself a mighty muscled animal, but his six feet of height and his great rolling sinews seemed pitifully inadequate to the ordeal which awaited them in their struggle with Kerchak.

His bow and arrows lay son tance away, where he had dropped them when showing Sabor's hide to his fellow apes, and he confronted Kerchak with only his knife and his superior intellect to offset the ferocious strength of his enemy.

As his antagonist came roaring toward him Lord Greystoke tore his long knife from the sheath and, with an an swering challenge as horrid and blood, curdling as that of the beast he faced rushed swiftly to meet the attack. He was too shrewd to allow those long, hairy arms to encircle him, and just as their bodies were about to crash to gether Tarzan of the apes grasped on of the huge wrists of his assailant and, springing lightly to one side, drove his knife to the hilt into Kerchak's body below the heart.

Before he could wrench the blade free again Kerchak's quick lunge to grasp him in those awful arms had torn the hilt from Tarzan's hand.

Kerchak aimed a terrific blow at the ape man's head with the flat of his hand, a blow which had it landed might easily have crushed in the side

The man was too quick and, ducking the blow, himself delivered a mighty with clinched fist in the pit of Kerchak's stomach.

The greater strength of the ape was slowly prevailing and the teeth of the straining beast were scarce an inch from Tarzan's throat when, with a shuddering tremor, the great body stiffened for an instant and then sank limply to the ground.

Kerchak was dead and Tarzan of the

CHAPTER VII. Man's Reason.

HERE was one of the tribe of Tarzan who questioned his authority, and that was Terkoz, the son of Tublat, but he se feared the keen knife and the deathly arrows of his new lord that he confined the manifestation of his objections to petty disobediences and irritating mannerisms. Tarzan knew, however that he but waited his opportunity to wrest the kingship from him by some sudden stroke of treachery and so he was always on guard against surprise. For months the life of the little band went on much as it had before, except that Tarzan's greater intelligence and his ability as a hunter were the means of providing for them more bountifully than ever before. Most of them, therefore, were more than content with the hange in rulers.

During this period Tarzan paid many octurnal visits to the village, where ne often renewed his supply of arrows. The blacks had not as yet come upon Tarzan's cabin on the distant beach. but the ape man lived in constant the apes, the young Lord Greystoke, dread that, while he was away with, would have died as he had lived—an the tribe, they would discover and despoil his treasure. So it came that he pent more and more time in the vieinity of his father's last home and ess and less with the tribe.

Presently the members of his little mmunity began to suffer on account of his neglect, for disputes and quarrels constantly arose which only the king might settle peaceably.

At last some of the older ares spoke month thereafter he remained constantly with the tribe.

Tarzan's knife on the present occa sion but barely offset the gleaming fangs of Terkoz, and what little advantage the ape had over the man in brute strength was almost balanced by the latter's wonderful quickness and agility.

In the sum total of their points, how ver, the anthropoid had a shade the better of the battle, and had there been no other personal attribute to influence the final outcome Tarzan would have died as he had lived-an unknown savage beast in equatorial

But there was that which had raised him far above his fellows of the jungle, that little spark which spells the vast difference between man and brutereason. This it was that saved him from death beneath the iron muscles and tearing fangs of Terkoz.

But so far the young Englishman had been able to keep the horrible fangs from his jugular, and, as they fought less fiercely for a moment to re gain their breath, Tarzan formed cunning plan. He would work his way home until Terkoz was no more.

The maneuver was accomplished more easily than be had hoped for the stupid beast, not knowing what Tar zan was attempting, made no partic ular effort to prevent the accomplish ment of the design.

But when finally he realized that bis ntagonist was fastened to him where his teeth and fists alike were useles against him Terkoz burled himself about upon the ground so violently that Tarzan could but cling desperate ly to the leaping, turning, twisting body, and ere he had struck a blow the knife was hurled from his hand by heavy impact against the earth. "Huh," assented Terkoz.

"And you are satsfied?" "Huh," said the ape.

Tarzan let him up, and in a few minutes all were back at their voca tions as though naught had occurred to mar the tranquillity of their prime val forest haunts.

But deep in the minds of the aper was rooted the conviction that Tarzan was a mighty fighter and a strange creature-strange because he had had it in his power to kill his enemy, but had allowed him to live, unharmed.

That afternoon as the tribe came to-gether, as was their wont after darkness settled on the jungle, Tarzan, his wounds washed in the limpid waters of the little stream, called the old males about him.

"You have seen again today that Tarzan of the apes is the greatest among you." he said. "Huh," they replied with one voice.

"Tarzan is great."
"Tarzan," he continued, "is not an ape. He is not like his people. His ways are not their ways, and so Tarzan is going back to the lair of his own kind by the waters of the great lake which has no farther shore. You must choose another to rule you. Tarzan

And thus young Lord Greystoke took the first step toward the goal which he had set himself-the finding of other white men like himself.

The following morning Tarzan, James and sore from the wounds of his bat tle with Terkoz, set out toward the west and the seacoast.

He traveled very slowly, sleeping in the jungle at night and reaching his cabin late the following morning.

For several days he moved about but little, only enough to gather what fruit and nuts be required to satisfy the de mands of hunger.

In ten days he was quite again except for a terrible, half healed scar which, starting above his left eye ran across the top of his head, ending at the right ear. by Terkoz when he had torn the scale

During his convalescence tried to fashion a mantle from the skin of Sabor, the tiger, which had lain all this time in the cabin. But he found the hide dried as stiff as : board, and, as he knew naught of tan ning, he was forced to abandon his cherished plan.

Then he determined to filch wha few garments he could from one of the black men of Mbonga's village, for h had décided to mark his elevation from the lower orders in every possi ble manner, and nothing seem him a more distinguishing badge of manhood than ornaments and clothing

To this end, therefore, he collected the various arm and leg ornaments he had taken from the black warriors wi had succumbed to his swift and siles noose and donned them all

About his neck hung the golden chair from which depended the diamond in-crusted locket of his mother, the Lady Alice. At his back was a quiver of ar rows slung from a leathern shoulde belt, another piece of loot from som vanquished black.

About his waist was a belt of tin, strips of rawhide fashioned by himsel as a support for the homemade sea bard in which hung his father's hunt ing knife. The long bow which been Kulonga's hung over his left shoulder.

The young Lord Greystoke was indeed a strange and warlike figure. his mass of black hair failing to his shoulders behind and cut with his hunting knife to a rude bang upon his fore-head, that it might not fall before his Hair was commencing to grow upon is face. All the apes had hair upor theirs, but the black men were entirely hairless, with very few exceptions.

True, he had seen pictures in his books of men with great masses of hair upon lip and cheek and chin; but. nevertheless, Tarzan was afraid. Al-most daily he whetted his keen kuife and scraped and whittled at his young beard to eradicate this degrading em blem of apehood.

And so he learned to shave, rudely and painfully, it is true, but nevertheless effectively.

Obituary.

Sarah Ellen Hicks, daughter of Alford and Frances Hicks, was born in Galeton County, Ky., Dec. 21st, 1841, and departed this life at her late home in Stilesville July Fourth, 1914, at the ripe age of 72 years, 6 months and 13 days. She came to Indiana with her parents and four brothers in 1853, settling in Green County, thence moving to Putnam County in 1854, where she spent the greater part of her life. settling in Green County, thence moving to Putnam County in 1854, where she spent the greater part of her life, having moved to Stilesville four years ago. She was united in marriage to Sylvester Wallace April 15th, 1860. To this union were born nine children, six of whom are living, three having preceeded her to the great beyond. Three boys and three girls live to mourn the loss of a mother, namely: Lemuel, Charles, John, Mrs. Eva Cassady, Mrs. Ira Elmore and Mrs. Roxie Hodge. All were present to bid the mother good-bye. She professed a hope in Christ in 1874 under the preaching of Elder John Foster, at what is known as the Sallust school house. Although she never united with any church she held a strong faith in her Savior, and said she was ready to go when he called. Her only regret was in leaving her aged husband, with whom she had walked INJURED SEVERELY WHEN Sarah Ellen Hicks, daughter of in life so many years, sharing alike each other's joys and sorrows, and her

dear children, for whom she always had a kind word and a welcome smile. She told them she would soon be at rest and for them to so live that when rest and for them to so live that when called they would meet her in heaven. She leaves besides her aged husband and family one brother, Morton Hick of Mt. Meridian; three sons-in-law, and three daughters-in-law, twenty-two grandchildren, besides a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. ## A MISTAKEN IDEA

There are some people who still resort to drugged pills or alcoholic syrups to overcome colds, nervousness or general debility, and who know that the pure, unadulterated nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is eminently better, but refrain from taking it because they fear it may lead to excessive fat or obesity.

This is a mistaken idea, because Scott's Emulsion first strengthens the body before making flesh. Its blood-forming properties aid nature to throw off sickness by building health from its very source, and flesh is formed only by its continued use. Avoid alcoholic substitutes for SCOTT'S.

RECEIPTS OF NEARLY $33,500,000 ON LAST DAY OF FISCAL YEAR PUTS REVENUES FAR ABOVE THE GOVERNMENT'S EXPENDI-TURES-SECRETARY McADOO CONGRATULATES WILSON, UN-DERWOOD AND SIMMONS ON SHOWING UNDER DEMOCRATIC

TAXES EFFECTIVE

WASHINGTON, July 1 .- Treasury figures completed tonight showed that the Federal government went through its first fiscal year under the Wilson administration with its income exceeding ordinary expenses by $33,-784,452.07. Nearly $33,500,000, pouring into the treasury the last day, brought the total receipts for the year up to $734,343,700.20, $1,500,000 above Secretary McAdoo's original estimate, and turned into a surplus what had promised the day before to be a substantial deficit.

Corporation and income tax payments furnished the stream of gold at the finish. From this source came $26,161,782.82 between the opening and closing of the treasury yesterday and tonight. Secretary McAdoo and other administration officials were pointing proudly to the total figures as proof of their promises as to what would be accomplished under the new

Canal to Take Surplus.

The treasury surplus this year will be wiped out, however, by Panama Canal expenditures, which have been paid from the general fund. During the twelve months $34,826,941 has been spent on the canal, and when this has been charged off there will be a deficit for the year of $1,010,,058.81 on the books. Last year the canal expenditures amounted to $41,741,258, and the final deficit was $400,733.

Last year's total receipts were only $691,140,000, but on the other hand the ordinary expenditures were only $654,805,000, or $45,754,248 below this year's total.

Secretary McAdoo estimates that approximately $3,500,000 in scheduled income and corporation tax assessments, not paid in June because penalty does not accrue against these as sessments until July 10, will bring a clear surplus for the year of approximately $2,500,000.

Congratulates Wilson.

secretary sent telegrams of congratulation to President Wilson, Representative Underwood, chairman of the House ways and means comnittee, and to Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee of the Senate, upon the result under the new tariff law. Later he issued a state-

"The department is exceedingly gratified with the results for the first fiscal year of the new tariff and income tax law. Unquestionably much better results will be obtained during the present fiscal year."

Until the question was raised by the Greencastle attorneys, the Utilities Commission members nor the attorneys for the Water Works Company did not know that the law had the section which prevents an instance of the commission in respect to the maximum rate fixed in the contract.

Again the Sunday school aggregation of baseball players from Cloverdale were victorious over the local youngsters. The south Putnam boys took the Boy Scouts of this city over in a game played on McKeen Field Thursday afternoon by a 6 to 2 score. The Cloverdale aggregation played a consistent game while the local boys were a trifle erratic, when the visitors succeeded in getting on the bases. The Cloverdale pitcher was too much for the Scouts and they were unable to hit safely when hits meant runs. Bee, for the Scouts, was hit freely and received raggred support. REPORTS OF BUSINESS FINAN-CIERS AND INCREASES BUSINESS OUTPUTS DISPROVE THE CLAIM OF SOME THAT COUNTRY IS ON VERGE OF A MOTOR NEAR-PANIC-FORD COMPANY TO DOUBLE ITS PLANT.

UNCLE SAM PROSPEROUS

The prediction of many far-sighted business men of the country to the effect that the alleged business depression of the past few months was only temporary and that the late sumner and the fall would see the begin ing of a new period of prosperity that has never been surpassed bids fair to become vindicated. Of course there are still those who would have us believe that the country is due for a near-panic but the developments of the past week have silenced all those who have cared to study the business situation as it really is and have caused those who have maintained their faith in the future to look for vard with still greater confidence.

As proof of the fact that busines picking up in the country, The Herald presents some news reports of extensions in different business fields and the formation of new busi ness enterprises. All of these were gleaned from the exchanges of the state that came to the office in one day. Consider the following:

The Ford Motor Company, of Detroit, Mich., will double its plant before fall, making it the largest manufacturing plant of any kind in the country. Seven new buildings and a power plant will be erected, the total cost being about $5,000,000. Each new building will be six stories high, 900 feet long and 60 feet wide. The company plans with its increased facilpany plans with its increased facilities to double its output for 1915. When the factory is running at top speed about 40,000 men will be employed. The plant with the proposed additions will cover 85 acres.

Reports now fairly complete show that there will go into new churches and into buildings intended to advance the Christian cause in America, between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 this summer and fall. This sum is $5,000,000 above the normal for the same period of time.

United States treasury figures made public Wednesday night show that the federal government went through its first fiscal year under the Wilson administration with its income exceeding ordinary expenses by $33,784,-

These are but a few of the many similar reports that are being printed daily. The past month has shown a steady increase and the coming months are expected to furnish even greater encouragement.

JACK, THE DOG WHO WENT TO COLLEGE

(Mrs. H. A. Gobin.)

HE was a college dog. No one knew where he came from. No one knew his pedigree. His ancestors might have known the luxury of being well groomed, but when he came or the campus, he bore no trace of fa-mous kennels of good lineage; cockle mous kennels of good lineage; cockle burs and matted grass had pillowed his massive body, and his ribs told the pathetic story chronicled of Mother Hubbard's poor dog. He wanted something, and this something he found when he walked up to a group of college boys and girls. It was sympathy. Behind his big brown eyes there was that which appealed to the merry-hearted young people, and he won. Someone called him Jack, and whether that was his name or not, it suited him and he took it. Then kind hands ministered to nim, the burs and the tangled grasses were removed from tangled grasses were removed from his hair, he was given a bath, taken to a home where he was fed till satisfied, and entered college—that is, he became the college mascot, taking partin all college affairs with the enthusiasm incident to the occasion. He went asm incident to the occasion. He went nto different class rooms, sometimes the companion of the men, more ofter of the co-eds. His favorite depart-ent was that of philosophy, rarely dissing a recitation. He knew the sell taps for the closing of the hour, and would wake up from his nap with yawn, then walk gravely into the parties. His attendence at chapel was r. His attendance at chapel was r nad behavoir the best until lege yells were given, and then at liberty to mingle his voice rith other enthusiasts.

At one time he attended a concer-iven by the Boston Symphony Or chestra, taking his accustomed place in front of the rostrum. The violinist was giving a wonderful number, but one chord he struck seemed to stir Jack's emotions, and with a howl that rose above the tones of the player he ran from the chapel. The musician was not angered, but smiled and continued the number.

Among Jack's hest friends was a

Among Jack's best friends was a young student who had been a tramp. One of the janitors was mowing the campus when the boy approached him and questioned him about all the buildings and their uses, and finding that there were a number of boys who were working their way through school, asked the janitor if he thought he could find work and go through college, too. The janitor encouraged him and that was the beginning of a successful and honorable career of a man who not only worked his way through ho not only worked his way through

He cashed two more bad checks, for $5. each, but as they believed that this would not be sufficient to finance their trip to Indianapolis, they decided to take a rest and each when to his home. The police learned of their operations and about midnight Runyan was located at his home in south Greencastle. On the promise of his father that he would appear in the mayor's court Friday morning, the young man was ot arrested.

Runyan stated that morning that the revelry begun at about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he gave 'Beans" a dollar to buy a quart of whiskey. The liquor was taken to the pool room where Runyan and "Beans" drank it. By the time it had been drunk both were feeling fine and the two decided that Terre Haute, with ts bright and shining lights, was he place for them.

Runyan says he had a few dollars but as that was not enough he began to cash checks, drawn on the Citizens and Central National Bank. He signd his father's name to some of the checks and his own to others.

Alonzo Cook cashed a check for $10.; Fred Crawford obliged the young man and cashed one for $5 and the A. of two thousand, five hundred dollars B. Y. Pool room cashed one for $10. This, with the money Runyan had, them $30-"Beans" was broke. At 9:38 they were off for Terre Haute. What happened there is all a blank to Runyan. He knows, however, that he got home, accompanied by "Beans" on that he was broke. "Beans" had as-

> They had had such a good time that was the proper thing. So Runyan started again to secure financial aid. The Star Pool room management was blidging and let him have $5. Then he visited the Owl Drug store. "Beans," who was with him, waited on the outside while Runyan went in and asked Mr. Gautier if he would be

> Mr. Gautier hesitated, then told Runyan that he could hardly spare the money. "But come back, if you can't get it elsewhere," he said. And Runyan went back a little later and got $5. He wrote the check on the Central National Bank. Mr. Gautier happened to notice that as Runyan eft the store he was joined by

Then he began to question his judgment in cashing the check. Although it was quite late, he telephoned to an official of the bank and learned that Runyan had no account there. The olice were notified.

Ten dollars was not enough to make the trip to Indianapolis and as cash was coming hard, it was agreed that some sleep would not go bad and the nen went in search of rest. And while they slept the police worked.

Friday morning both Runyan and Friday morning both Runyan and "Beans" were before the mayor. In the meantime the father of Mr. Runyan had seen all those who had cashed the checks and had paid the checks. As there was no one to prosecute Runyan on a charge of passing a bad check, he was fined $1 and costs for intoxication. The fine was paid. "Beans" was fined $5 and costs on the same charge and went to jail. Runyan is married, having a wife and three children.

SON FEARS FATHER; SENDS FOR SHERIFF

Sheriff Theodore Boes and his deputy, Howard Harris, were called to Washington township late Sunday afternoon by a telephone message from a seventeen-year-old son of Henry Mace, age 50, asking the officers to go to the Mace home and arrest Mr. Mace. The son stated in his message to the officers that the father had a knife and was threatening to kill him. When the officers reached the Mace home, which is in the southwest corner of Washington township, they found Mr. Mace sitting quietly in his front yard. From members of the family they learned that Mace had been having trouble with Sam Skelton and other neighbors for several days and A fine rain fell in this vicinity last that on Sunday morning he had sharpened up a large knife, with which he had threatened to get someone. The son, by a ruse, managed to get the knife from the father. Later the father caught the son and severely whipped him.

It is intimated that Mace is not just right mentally and he was brought to Greencastle by the sheriff and placed in jail. The members of the family agreed to come to Greencastle Monday and file charges against Mr. Mace.

Monday morning the son came to Greencastle and filed with Squire Frank, an affidavit asking that an inquest, to ascertain the mental condition of his father, be held. The inquest was held that afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

The Citizens National Bank and Citizens Trust Co. in their statements of June 30th show a gain in combined totals since their statements of March 4th, of over $3,000.00; total assets in eight months of more than $353,000.00, and earnings, during the first six months' earning period in excess of 8 per cent. per annum. This showing is remarkable and unique, for no other bank ever organized in this community ever made anything like so good a showing, from the standpoint of either gains or profits. By law we are excluded from any share of the public money until May, 1915.

In May 1914 our more than 800 depositors paid in taxes, from thei balances in our banks, over $30,000.00, which now swells the balances of our competitors as public revenue. Notwithstanding this, we have gained in assets, gained in patrons, gained in profits. Allowing our eight month totals to stand for our totals at the end of our first year, and allowing us an average annual gain of only 5 per cent, then when we are the present age of our youngest competitor, we will have total assets of nearly twindline dollars.

Our remarkable growth to date bespeaks the confidence and good we of the Public, which are the best assets of any bank; our unusual she ing of earnings proves the financial ability, and business capacity of officers and directors, and our service to the people in providing them, safe keeping of their deposits and valuables, three times the strong vault in the county, and giving them, for the first time in their lives square deal on savings and bonds guarantees our future. These banks long to the people of Putnam County, and not to any man or clique T people have confidence in themselves and we have no fear but what it will be loyal to their own.

Every man, woman and child is confinilly invited to make use of Every man, woman and child is cordially invited to make use of facilities a d services of these robust young banks which have an absutely clean record,—not a dollar of bad paper, not a dime of overdranot an unserved and disappointed customer. We cannot be the oldest; do not hope in eight months to be the largest, but we do mean to be the bank in this community.
